Jacqueline has over 15 years of experience leading global and regional Organizational Development, Learning, Recruitment and Human Resources practices for organizations in creative companies like Momentum WW and McCann Worldgroup. During her time inside those organizations, she was able to create custom diagnostics, launch bespoke learning management platforms and systematize leadership evaluation metrics across global networks.

In 2018, Jacqueline co-founded the consultancy Mind & Moxie to drive forward the philosophy that any business challenge is really an intertwining of the Head and the Heart—the business and the people. A behavioral analyst and organizational psychologist at her core, Jacqueline’s ability to understand human interaction and connection inform her strategic and programmatic solutions.

Jacqueline holds a MA in industrial/organizational psychology from NYU. She is certified in Coach U programming, Predictive Index, Insights Discovery and Imperative Profiling. She is also a mentor for the University of Chicago Booth School Polsky Center. Jacqueline resides in Sunnyside, Queens with her husband and three children. She desperately wants to write children’s books.
