

Megan Hunt

Megan Hunt entered the sporting goods industry in 2008 when she joined Champro to focus on bringing the product line into compliance with the newly passed Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act. Since then, she has developed Champro's compliance, product safety, and quality control programs and worked to integrate those concepts into the product development cycle. She also focuses on improving interdepartmental processes and information-sharing.

Megan is mom to two student-athletes, ages 11 and 14, who are active in soccer, softball, basketball, and rowing. She lives with her family in Evanston, IL, and volunteers as scheduler for the local AYSO. She has a Bachelor of Arts degree in Economics and Math from St. Olaf College, and a Master of Public Policy degree from the University of Chicago.
